Estepona Official School of Languages is a state-run language learning center in Estepona, southern Spain, offering levels specified in the Common European Framework of Reference for languages. The school accepts students as young as 14 and has no age limit. Learners come from diverse backgrounds, including employed and unemployed adults, high school and university students, and those who learn for pleasure or personal challenge. The school offers English and French classes through face-to-face teaching and blended learning, with a total of 650 students and a qualified staff of 10 teachers. In addition to language classes, the school offers extracurricular activities, such as cultural events, linguistic immersion trips, and theater presentations to promote self-esteem and communication skills. The school also provides non-official intensive courses in German, Italian, and Russian, and receives continuous training to enhance teaching practices. The school's approach emphasizes effective communication, motivation, dedication, technology, and fun learning in a friendly workplace.
